My Dear Friends in Christ,

When I was in seminary, we often spoke of the “warm and fuzzy Jesus” of which people most often think when picturing Jesus. They think of the Jesus who restores sight to the blind, who restores health to the crippled, and life to the dead. While these images of Jesus are valid, they neglect the Jesus who was not afraid to confront authority, who was not afraid to upend the status quo.

In the Beatitudes as presented by Luke, Jesus offers blessings to the poor, the hungry, the weeping, the accused and insulted. He reminds them their “reward will be great in heaven” (Lk 17:23), something my mother used to say to us when things were not going our way. It was of little comfort to hear those words as a four year-old, but they are of great comfort as a fifty-four year old! Jesus does not stop there, though, as He does in other gospel treatments of the Beatitudes. Jesus follows these blessings with the “woe” statements, cautioning those who are rich, filled, laughing, well thought of, and the like. To these folks, his “woe” is not meant as sadness, but caution; Jesus might as well be saying “whoa” (as in ‘hold up/stop’) because these statements are meant as a caution and a warning. He cautions those who put their trust in the world that these are only passing fancies, fleeting glories. Our real treasure is in heaven, and Jesus is cautioning those who rely on the world for everything (in the control of the world or not) to be careful.

One of the challenges of the Christian life is that it is meant to be lived out in a world that does not always (or even often) follow gospel values and espouse gospel truths. The Christian life is one in which gospel truths and values are brought into the world, into one’s everyday life. Wherever we find ourselves – work, school, home – we are called to be “gospel people”; all too often we leave what we have heard and read right where we have heard and read it. Our challenge is to bring the gospel with us. As has been oft quoted, “be careful...you may be the only bible someone reads”; in other words, we are called to be the living embodiment of the gospel, following in the footsteps of Jesus.

May we have the courage to be gospel people. May we know the truth and be unafraid to incorporate it into our daily lives. May we not only “know of” Jesus, but truly “know” Him by how we live. May the Beatitudes which Luke offers be both comforting and challenging. May these words we hear today take root and bear fruit so that all may know Jesus and share Him with all whom we meet.

Have a Blessed Week,

Fr. Paul

"I was very disappointed to read the opinion piece (link here) by Governor Cuomo of New York published in Wednesday's New York Times regarding the law recently enacted in that state. I have penned a few thoughts on the issue, which I would like to share with you here:

This week, the New York Times published an editorial by the Governor of New York who makes the outrageous claim that pro-life Catholics are trying to impose our religion on the country. Opposition to abortion is not a "Catholic issue." We have no right to make Friday abstinence or the reception of Ashes on Ash Wednesday a legal obligation for all citizens. Abortion, like racism, anti-Semitism, and human trafficking are violations of human rights. Innocent human life should be protected by civil laws. The eroding of the sacredness of human life is a slippery slope that begins with abortion, moves to euthanasia and then the elimination of the weak, feeble, and the "undesirable" whose lives are not as important and are inconvenient. Cheapening human life is to devalue all life. When the abortion debate began, the pro-abortion advocates said it was impossible to know when human life begins. That has become a moot question. While science makes viability possible sooner and sooner in the pregnancy, abortion advocates want to keep moving the goalpost in the other direction. It no longer matters when human life begins.

The Pro-Life movement is the largest grassroots human rights movement in the U.S. We must also continue to expand our effort to help women to be able to choose life in the midst of economic and social pressures to take the life of their child. Indeed, I wish to be clear that I recognize the difficult situations women often face in pregnancy. To stand for unborn life morally is not to stand against women in these tragic circumstances. Both the woman and the child deserve our support.

Being at the March for Life is so reassuring. Young people, often the least religious segment of the population, are nevertheless the more pro-life generation. Despite the ugliness of the present effort of some to promote abortion, hope for the future is bright because more and more young people realize that abortion is not a religious issue. It is a matter of public morality and the defense of human rights. The day is coming when the abortion movement will find itself on the wrong side of history as the new generation embraces the protection of life."

Find the FUN in DysFUNction

Presenter: Dottie Levesque

This 4-session evening seminar will examine the effects and affects of having been part of a dysfunctional family that did not recognize emotions, process them and grow from them. It is important to know that it is never too late to learn: 1/ sadness is not the foundation of life; 2/ healthy laughter is a healing factor; 3/ goals are achievable, even by me; 4/ God's love is the source of strength and courage to move forward. Find comfort in joining others on the same journey of discovering.

EVERYDAY STEWARDSHIP

February 17, 2019
6th Sunday in Ordinary Time

When I was a child, I often thought of the Church as something mystical and supernatural. I wasn't wrong in my understanding of the Body of Christ, for surely the Church has these characteristics. However, even though we speak about the foundation of all we are as Church being the "mystery of Christ," Jesus became a man so that supernatural element could break into the natural world in a profound way. What we once could not see, we now see. What we saw as a God in a distant place now dwelt among us. It is one of the aspects of Catholicism that I have grown to appreciate the most as I have matured: for a Catholic, the supernatural is natural. The communion of saints is heavenly and earthly at the same time.

The Beatitudes instruct us about this reality. Pope Francis reminds us that holiness is "not about swooning in mystic rapture." Holiness is about living in the real world and doing extraordinary things with our ordinary lives. Our stewardship way of life consists of actions in the natural world that have extraordinary repercussions.

Do not ever take your simple actions of generosity and love for granted. As disciples called to a life of stewardship, we participate in something more profound than what we can see. We are blessed to be called to follow Jesus, and we bring blessing to all those with whom we choose to share ourselves.

-Tracy Earl Welliver, MTS
