NOTES FROM THE PASTOR

My Dear Friends in Christ,

Over the past half-century, a multitude of committed Christians (over 650,000) embark on a journey of faith to Washington, D.C. Their purpose is a solemn and important one, one which we have had to undertake for almost four decades now. It is the “March For Life” and it is an event which highlights the need for us to be a “light to the nations”. It is a rally which will bring together rich and poor, young and old, men, women and children. The “binding force” which links us all (marchers and prayers, alike) together is our unwavering commitment to the defense of life for the pre-born, one of the most vulnerable groups among us. While a milestone event took place a few years ago (with the overturning of “Roe v. Wade” by the Supreme Court), there is still much work to be done in defense of those of who have no one to speak for them. We take courage, however, in the fact that we have made a difference, one mind and heart at a time. I know in my own conversations with people over the years, I have seen many folks come to a moment of conversion. This is done not by me, but through me and by the grace of God.

Today’s gospel highlights the need for us to see that we are all called by God. Often times, we look at the gospel proclaimed today as a call for more to enter into the priesthood. That “call” is certainly there, but implicit in this passage is the fact that we are all called by God to “fish” for men and women receptive (and, perhaps, not so receptive (at first)) to God’s call to them to respond to their baptismal call to serve God and His people in the Church and in the world. It begins, however, in our own heart and mind. We cannot convincingly call others to conversion, to a new way of thinking about and looking at life, if we don’t first believe it. We can “talk the talk”, using words such as “discipleship” and “ministry”. If we don’t believe and live what we are saying, however, then it is just that – talk – and our words ring hollow. We must first believe, and then live, what we have heard, letting them “take root” in our own minds and hearts.

Jesus, in this encounter by the seashore, begins to assemble “the twelve”. In calling Simon, Andrew, James and John, Jesus’ call is sure. The disciples’ response, for their part, is immediate. What courage it must have taken for them to respond so quickly and surely; what faith it must have taken to leave all that they knew to follow Jesus. Jesus isn’t calling us, necessarily, to leave all that we know. Sometimes it’s best to “grow where you’re planted”, responding to God’s call wherever you are. Our response, however, must be as bold as the disciples’ was, for it is a bold thing to profess one’s faith publicly. May we have the openness to hear God’s call. May we have the boldness to respond with surety. May we speak to others about our faith with courage and conviction. May all come to know, through our words, given to us by the Holy Spirit, what we have come to know: that Jesus Christ has broken the chains of sin and death, and won for us newness of life!

Have a Blessed Week,

Fr. Paul

MY FRANCISCAN JOURNEY

Today's gospel relates the "call" of the men who would become not only "disciples" (i.e., followers of Jesus) but "Apostles" ("one who is sent", in this case by Christ) of Jesus. We may look at today's gospel and think of this call as "one-and-done", but the truth of the matter is that the conversion of the Apostles, which followed their initial invitation to follow Jesus, happened over the course of their lives and deepened with each miracle event, sermon, and encounter with Jesus.

If you are a regular reader of this column, you've heard of the conversion of St. Francis and his subsequent mission to "rebuild the church". In both of these instances, neither of these events in Francis' life were "one-time events". They happened as a "moment of faith" in Francis' life, but they both unfolded over time. Much like the Apostles of Jesus, we can look at Francis' conversion and mission as encounters with Jesus which shaped most of Francis' adult life and see that Jesus continued to reveal Himself to Francis in both profound and simple ways.

Like most of us, God reveals Himself in many of these profound and simple ways. For Francis, the encounter with the leper, the call emanating from the San Damiano Cross, his break from his father (and, really, his former way of life), his forming of the Franciscan Order, and his reception of the Stigmata all point to an ever-deepening relationship with the Lord. May we come to encounter the Lord in profound and simple ways. May we, like Francis, be open to hearing the voice and seeing the face of Christ in our lives. May we respond to these encounters with the love, passion, and zeal with which Francis did.

Pax et Bonum,

Fr. Paul, OFS

How many times a day can a person receive communion?

To find an answer to this question, we need to turn to the Church's Code of Canon Law. Here we read, "One who has received the blessed Eucharist may receive it again on the same day only within a Eucharistic celebration in which that person participates ..." (no. 917). This tells us that the standard answer would be that we can receive communion twice in a day.

Having said that, we also want to be sure that we pay attention to the entire instruction. The phrase "within a Eucharistic celebration in which that person participates" is important. It means a) that we always have to think of receiving communion as being within a celebration of the Mass and b) we have to be participants in that celebration – we can't simply show up "in time" for communion.

So, when would this rule apply?

For example, if you attend Mass on a Saturday morning and then take part in the Sunday Vigil Mass on Saturday evening, you could licitly receive communion at both celebrations. Or, another example, if you receive communion at a wedding or funeral Mass, you could also receive communion at a daily Mass or Sunday Vigil celebrated on the same day. We always want to be sure that we observe the rules for fasting from food and drink before receiving the eucharist (see Code of Canon Law, no. 919).

We should also remember that the Code of Canon Law instructs that anyone who is in danger of death or seriously ill may also receive communion a second time (no. 91, §2).
