Balancing Prayer and Work: Dancing the Delicate Dance

Presenter: Michael Boover

Many of us seek to live a life that balances leisure and labor but are hard-pressed to actually do so. This retreat invites participants to explore the “ins and outs” of the spiritual life by opening to inner and outer movements that may prove helpful and hopeful in the daily round of faith. Participants will be invited to integrate needed contemplation with blessed activism in their particular life circumstances.

9:15 am – 4:00 pm (Registration begins at 8:30 am)
 Lunch and Mass included in the program.

My Dear Friends in Christ,

Over thirty years ago, I received my “call” to priesthood. So why, you might ask, am I a priest for only twenty-one years? Well, the short answer is that my first response was “no”! I can remember standing in the sacristy of my home parish church, and my pastor asked me the fateful question, “Paul, have you ever thought about being a priest?” I must admit, sheepishly, that I literally laughed in the man’s face! Looking back now, how mortified he must have been at my response. When I realized he was serious, I composed myself and told him I hadn’t really ever thought about it. This inquiry was followed by two others (from a great-aunt who was a Sister of the Blessed Sacrament, and from my high school chaplain) over the course of six months. Independent of one another, they all saw something in me that I didn’t (until later) see in myself.

I sense it must have been the same for Elisha (in today’s first reading) and to the ones who were called by Jesus – one who said that he would follow Jesus, but may have been put off by Jesus’ response and the other two who had commitments which they felt they had to attend to first. Jesus’ (and Elijah’s) response to their needs may seem harsh (especially “let the dead bury their dead” (Lk 9:60)), but Jesus’ reasoning is sound. For one to follow Jesus, all else must come second. The same is true for us. Whatever commitments we might have in life (family, work, school) have to come behind our following God. This doesn’t necessarily mean that we abandon all we know/have/are, but it does mean that all else comes second (and sometimes a far second). In this way, God can have His due and we can focus in on what is true, lasting and of real value.

When Elisha is called by Elijah to be anointed and to be his attendant, he has a life which is, most likely, fulfilling; it’s not like he has nothing going for him. The call to Elisha from Elijah, however, isn’t from Elijah – it is from God. This is why Elijah’s response is so strong. Elijah realizes that God sees in Elisha something that he doesn’t see himself (I know the feeling!). I think the same is true for all of us. We are all called by God to take a part in the mission of the Church. We, like Elisha, may feel that we have other, more pressing matters. These matters, however important, can never supersede our call from God. If it is a true calling from God, it will be “in line” with the life which God is calling us to live. Sometimes this means a radical shift in our way of life, sometimes not. Sometimes it just means a little “adjustment” to what we are doing and how we are living. In any case, we need to be open to hear God’s call in our lives.

May we have the courage to be “open” to hear God’s call, in whatever form it may come. When that call comes, may we respond with immediacy and surety. May this call, enriching our lives, be a fulfillment of all that we our in our own lives, and in the lives of our brothers and sisters. May we know and believe that this call, from God, will both fulfill our “mission” in the Church, and the mission of the Church itself – to call all to newness of life in Christ Jesus.

Have a Blessed Week,

Fr. Paul

EVERYDAY STEWARDSHIP - RECOGNIZE GOD IN YOUR ORDINARY MOMENTS

June 30, 2019
13th Sunday in Ordinary Time

Some conversion stories people tell are so profound and meaningful that they make you want to invent a story for yourself. Some of us have these type of stories to tell, but most of us can only tell stories of slowly coming into a greater maturity of faith over many years and many mistakes. I personally was baptized as an infant, grew up in the Church, and never experienced a time when I was fully the prodigal son. I have sinned quite often throughout my years, but I never drifted so far away where I needed that moment of truth to help me see the light.

However, that does not diminish the fact that I have been made new in Christ and I need to live in a way that leaves the old me behind. If you are like me, you must admit there are times when that former self comes into view. There are times when we fall into our sin to the point where no one would believe we were baptized disciples of Jesus. Thank God there is forgiveness through the sacraments. When we fall, we can always recover and be made new again.

So maybe it is not true that people like me don't have a profound conversion story. Maybe the truth is we simply have MANY conversion stories. As we continually strive to pick up our crosses and follow Him, we fall away and need to come back to Him. Each time, we have a new story. Each time, God's love and healing are profound. Each time, we have something new to tell.

SEASONAL REFLECTION

June 30, 2019
13th Sunday in Ordinary Time

Independence Day

Today throughout the United States, we celebrate our freedom. Our rights are protected and opportunities abound. We recognize that freedom has a cost, one we celebrate and honor on days such as this. It's good to honor those who fight for our country, who may well pay the ultimate price for the liberties we're afforded. As faithful Catholics, we recognize that there is more to freedom than simply being at liberty to make our lives what we want them to be. St. John Paul II reminds us: "Freedom is not just doing what we can, it is doing what we ought." We become freer within ourselves and within our relationships when we choose what is right and good. When we choose sin, we become trapped in egoism - less free, not more. This Independence Day, let's continue to pursue virtue and good character and encourage others to do this same.

June 30: Thirteenth Sunday in Ordinary Time

In today's Gospel we see how Jesus, on his way to Jerusalem, sent "messenger on ahead of Him." To be the messengers of God, we must know well what it is God wants to say and do through us, as he sends us out to bring his love to others
